Teaching the value of education to kids begins earlier than you think

By Alex Perilla

In the past 4 years, college enrollment in Arizona has fallen from 55.3% of high school graduates to 47.3%. In 2021, only 6.5 million male students enrolled in a postsecondary institution whereas 8.9 million women enrolled. Add in the absenteeism epidemic in America's classrooms, which rose from 6.5 million to 14.7 million in just three years and the problem seems almost insurmountable.

Yet, the value of education still holds.

Professionals who have completed post-secondary education, whether a certificate, license, or degree, contribute to a more robust local economy, enjoy individual prosperity and see reduced social spending.

For example, increasing the postsecondary enrollment rate in Arizona by 20% would lead to gains — including lifetime earnings, improved health, reduced crime and welfare spending, and increased workforce productivity.

Yet, with all this in mind, approximately 25% of high school graduates in Arizona who are eligible do not go to community college or a four-year university.

What can we do to change these statistics?

Parents are our first teachers

One possible solution is to start raising a new generation of students who want to take advantage of the many benefits only higher education can offer. This plan won't begin in the classroom, however. Passion for education first begins in our homes; parents are our children's first teachers and play an essential role in developing interest in post-secondary schooling even earlier than one might think. While most of these discussions are left to the

OBITUARY

Lena M. Placencia

It is with profound sadness that we announce the passing of Lena M. Placencia, a loving wife, devoted mother, grandmother and great-grandmother on Dec. 25, 2023.

Surrounded by her family, she left peacefully while sleeping, and, more importantly, while holding the hand of the love of her life for over 65 years, Edward Placencia, who has never left her side.

Lena was born on Jan. 13, 1939, in Gillman, Colorado to William and Lucy Trujillo. Upon her father's passing they moved to Superior, Arizona in 1957 with her daughter, mother and two sisters.

Lena met and married Edward in 1959, and together they made their home in Superior. They raised three daughters, Louene Casteneda (Richard), Arlene Hernandez (Richard) and Robin Sifuentes (Mike).

In 2007, she and Edward moved to Texas City, Texas, but she spent many weekends driving to Louisiana, where she enjoyed visiting their casinos.

She leaves behind four grandchildren, Geresa Lopez (Eli), Edward Hernandez (Jennifer), Alex Castaneda (Julia) and Vanessa Hernandez (Trey); 10 great-grandchildren, Zoe and Heaven Lopez, Phoenix, Joaquin and Edward Ray Hernandez, Alyssa, Richard, Gabriel and Lorenzo Castaneda, and Richard Krenz IV.

Lena and Edward co-founded the original St. Francis Catholic Church annual fiestas which have been held yearly since 1976 in Superior. They devoted many years to organizing, planning, and fundraising that made the Fiesta an annual huge success.

She worked and cared for the elderly. If she found a need, she jumped in with two feet and a loving heart. She was always up for the challenge.

Lena loved cooking, crafting, holiday planning, and was highly skilled with crocheting and home décor. She kept an immaculate home and had a knack for all beautiful things.

Most of all, she loved her family, and she instilled in her daughters' strong values and perseverance. Love and faith in God were most important in her household.

She is preceded in death by her father, William Trujillo; mother, Lucy Ortega; brother, Thomas Montoya; and sister, Alice Johnson.

She will be sadly missed and will remain forever in our hearts until we meet again.

Services will be announced at a later date.

Pinal Cemetery undergoing changes

Have you been by the Pinal Cemetery in Central Heights lately? A wall is going up around the perimeter, and drainage issues are being fixed. This is the work of a partnership between the newly formed Gila County Memorial Foundation (GCMF), Gila County Public Works, and Tonto National Forest.

Formerly the Globe-Miami Memorial Foundation, this group has re-structured to include more areas and people. This new group's mission remains the same.

The Globe-Miami Area Memorial Foundation was established with an express mission: To Catalog the biographical records of local citizens and assist with the upkeep and platting of area cemeteries by providing work opportunities utilizing people of our communities. The Foundation is a non-profit, community-based organization existing solely to benefit the people of our communities. It is governed by a Board of Directors elected by the individuals who contribute to the Foundation.

Currently, membership is represented by Gila County, City of Globe, Lamont Mortuary, Gila

County Historical Society, Bullion Plaza Cultural Center & Museum, Globe Elks Club, Gila County 4H, individuals, and volunteers.

As a 501(c)3, donations to the GCMF enable the committee to do repairs and other projects, such as the new fence at Pinal Cemetery along Main Street. Significant funds will be needed to complete this one project and to fund future projects, both at Pinal and other cemeteries in the county. You can mail donations to: Gila County Memorial Foundation, P.O. Box 489, Claypool, AZ 85532

The GCMF is open to the public and meets every third Tuesday of the month at 3:30 p.m. in the Gila County Supervisors' Hearing Room at the Gila County Courthouse, 1400 E. Ash St., Globe. Bring your ideas for both projects and fundraising. You can follow what the committee is working on by visiting their Facebook page, Gila County Memorial Foundation.

For more information about the Gila County Memorial Foundation, call Joe Sanchez at (928) 200-2012 or (928) 473-3550, or Mary Anne Moreno at (928) 425-7242 (message).

Volunteers Joe Sanchez, Leon Garlinghouse, Mary Anne Moreno and Karrie Rumsower are thrilled with the changes at the Pinal Cemetery in Gila County.

Citizen Science and Conservation

Submitted by Bob Allen
Southeast Pinal County Master Gardeners

The Southeast Pinal County Master Gardeners are pleased to invite you to our Community Education February event.

“How Your Citizen Science Data Helps Conservation” will be presented by Dr. Katy Prudic, PhD, Assistant Professor in the School of Natural Resources and the Environment, University of Arizona, on Feb. 14, 2024, as a free ZOOM presentation.

Many of us participate in citizen, or community, science programs such as eBird, iNaturalist, Nature’s Notebook and eButterfly. Whether we are collecting or cataloging information on butterfly migration, bird counts or plant disease patterns and infestations, our observations do matter. How that data is cleaned, stored, shared and used for conservation action is a black box for most citizen scientists. This data is important for evaluating species of concern, predicting the impacts of climate change, targeting habitat enrichment, and training the next generation of scientists and conservationists. Professor Prudic will discuss the general pathways your animal or plant observations help spur conservation action while also providing examples from the desert southwest.

Dr. Prudic has been involved with the creation of software applications and programs for citizen scientists and the use of that information. Her findings have been published in Science, Proceedings of the National Academy, and Proceedings of the Royal Society and featured on BBC, National Geographic, and the New York Times among others.

Join us on Feb. 14, 2024 at 1:00 PM for this free ZOOM presentation. Visit our website at extension.arizona.edu/southeast-pinal-county-master-gardener. Once there, click on “events”. For questions about registration, send an email to lmcooy@email.arizona.edu.

- Mobilization.
- Clearing and grubbing.
- Vegetation trimming and removal.
- Mill existing AC surfacing.
- Blend millings into existing base material
- Shape roadway profile and cross slope and compact base material.
- Blade shoulders and cut ditches.
- Survey roadway for grade control.

Note: the project will avoid the large drainage issues at the west end and avoid the railroad tracks.

Due to limited Right-of-way and funding, the lighting and sidewalk/multi-use path may be deferred to a later time.

NEED: The Towns of Hayden and Winkelman own South Golf Course Boulevard and Quarelli Street, respectively. These roadways provide access to an area central to recreational and outdoor activities including the Hayden Public Golf Course, Bobby Bracamonte Little League Field, Hastings Park and Winkelman Flats Park which serve Hayden, Winkelman and the Copper Basin Community. A PARA Pre-Scoping Study was completed in 2015. The Towns identified the need for street improvements due to the condition of the existing facility and rising safety concerns. The existing pavement is in visibly poor condition with cracking and deterioration of roadway edges along both South Golf Course Road and Quarelli Street for the extents of the project limits. Additional issues of the existing transportation facility include varying roadway widths; lack of pavement markings; lack of pedestrian pathway/sidewalks in most areas; lack of roadway/pedestrian lighting; and minimal signing.

LOCATION: Towns of Winkelman and Hayden, Gila County AZ

last two years of high school, studies show that earlier discussions have a greater influence on a child's later enrollment in a four-year academic institution.

As children develop, they learn what their parents value and often adopt similar viewpoints. Homes that present learning and education as exciting, useful and valued, have more engaged and successful students. The idea that through education, one can better understand current events, develop strong study habits, find and pursue a career and gain power through knowledge learned is a key message parents can continue to share with their kids throughout development.

However, not all parents see the value of education. Perhaps they did not have the means to attend college themselves, or a job was prioritized over college because money was scarce. Whatever the reason, parents often wish they would have had more support from their family to pursue higher education and hope to do it differently with their own kids.

Students whose parents stay involved in school have better attendance and behavior, get better grades, demonstrate better social skills and adapt better to school. Join in college readiness programming

Access ASU, a K-12 outreach division at Arizona State University (ASU) dedicated to increasing access to higher education, has developed thoughtful programming to support parents and assist families in discussing higher education preparedness and degree attainment with their young children.

One of these such programs, WeGrad, provides a series of lessons for elementary, middle school and high school parents that teaches them how to reinforce the value of education, understand their role in academic success and prepare their student for college.

If it truly takes a village, then it makes sense to invite the whole village into the conversation. Families can now be the educated voice in how to accomplish the necessary tasks so their children can be prepared for postsecondary education. They can become a part of the financial preparedness and the expert on next steps to help guide their students to successfully enroll at the college of their choice.

Continue conversations and share what you've learned

Parents can start having conversations about college with their children prior to joining college readiness programs like those offered by Access ASU. Many experts recommend starting these conversations as early as kindergarten. When in elementary school, children might be more open to talking about the links between their schoolwork and what they want to do when they finish school. Beginning these conversations early helps to build a foundation of trust and interest and is then easier to carry on as your child begins adolescence and adulthood.

Some possible topics include:

- Becoming an advocate for your child by opening lines of communication with their teacher, principal and support staff, especially in elementary school.
- Teaching responsibility to help your student achieve academic success during formative middle school years.
- Developing goals to assist high school students in meeting admission requirements in a timely fashion.

As kids develop, the discussions can certainly become more complex and build upon the foundational knowledge already shared. The goal is to make education, and a trusted relationship between parent and child, the cornerstones of painting a successful future together. To help shape your child's educational future, enroll in WeGrad today. With a curriculum delivered via text messages suited for elementary, middle and high school families, it's a simple and efficient way to support your student's academic journey. Visit WeGrad.asu.edu/digital to sign up or learn more.

Construction begins on Coleman Alley Park

The Town of Superior in collaboration with Arizona Water Company and the University of Arizona Water Resources Research Council hosted its first rainwater capture educational event on Saturday; and volunteers gathered to begin planting the plants for the new park.

The Coleman Alley Park was designed to help capture rainwater which will then water the drought tolerant plants and return water to the aquifers, while also assisting with drainage issues.

Initial funding of $12,000 for the park came from the Water Now Alliance and River Network. Ashley Hullinger from the University of Arizona Water Resources Council and Raluca Mihalcescu from Arizona Water Company were selected to attend a leadership program with the Water Now Alliance that helped to bring government and water providers together to work on long term sustainability efforts. Following the completion of the leadership program the Town of Superior was awarded the $12,000-grant to conduct a water conservation project.

The park was designed by Eighty Eight Acres landscaping designers. Additional funding and support to complete the project was awarded by Resolution Copper, Rebuild Superior Inc. and the Town of Superior. The Town of Superior Public Works Department managed the ground work.

The Coleman Alley Park will be an educational park helping others learn about landscape design that can help conserve the water and manage drainage while also offering a new outdoor park for everyone to enjoy on the east end of Main Street.

You can learn more about the Superior: Sustainability Elevated program and the Coleman Alley Green Infrastructure Park online at: <https://sustainabilityelevated.com>
